The Three BIG ones

In "that really large country", where Christianity is growing so fast, the opportunity of having 40 church leaders from all the provinces (one participant had travelled for 50 hours to be there) in the same room for 3 days in order to develop their preaching skills is nothing short of amazing.

One pastor heads up a church containing 900 university students; another was able to return home and bring 100 local leaders together to start a "preaching clinic" to help raise local standards of biblical preaching; another one, who already teaches doctoral students, is adopting Langham's practical approach into her daily lessons.

In India, the story things moved even faster. One attendee is a woman who is an Associate Professor of Communications at a theological seminary in the north east of India. This enterprising woman completed her first week of training and immediately returned home to start a local preacher's club for leaders from across all denominations drawing in both lay & clerical communicators.

So what is the key to Langham's practical training that she was so keen to imitate? It was the incredibly "simple, accessible and transferable" (SAT) method we use. Step 1 involves personal study by attendees of a given passage of the Bible. Step 2 separates the attendees into small groups who help each other to fashion the text into a communicable structure. Step 3 brings all the groups together to share their structures in an "art gallery style" walk around the room as each group's proposed structures are written down on flip chart sheets and pinned up on the walls. Step 4 allows the entire body of attendees to listen to a seasoned communicator preach from that very same text. And finally, Step 5 sees group evaluations – where did each group hit the sweet spot and what could they have done to improve their outlines?

The Three NEEDY ones

In Cambodia the preaching networks simply love the simplicity of this "SAT approach", which only seems to enhance their already high levels of enthusiasm. For one participant it meant absolutely nothing for him to hold up his mobile phone at head height and record all that was being done so that he could share it with his local networks back home afterwards.

This month will see the regional work in Pakistan bring groups together from Karachi, Lahore and Islamabad for a national conference for the "training of trainers" – a final stage that equips seasoned preachers to run even more networks locally as they train others.

All this is just one small look into the work of God across a vast region of our world. But we believe that it is indicative of the "Simple, Accessible and Transferrable" method we use that is starting to impact a growing multitude of Asian preachers. Would you consider standing with us to make this "benevolent virus" spread even further?

A standing order of just £20 per month allows us to commit to one more church leader, whether lay or clerical, as he or she commits to constantly improving their skills in bringing our Lord's good news to ever more people. The potential is vast as we watch with amazement as this "benevolent virus" spreads into thousands of churches, campuses and villages across Asia.

Encouraging a benevolent virus that is “Simple, Accessible and Transferrable”

Langham Partnership focuses tirelessly on partnering with churches and para-church organisations in the Majority World as they seek to “grow with depth” through their development of preaching, literature and local scholars. When we work with them to make the effective communication of the good news possible, through a variety of local preaching networks, the stories are often stunning but always an eye-opener to any Western onlooker. And according to Paul Windsor, based in Asia, those stories are coming out of many regions this month.

LP’s preaching ministry in Asia is primarily focused on the “3 BIG” countries (the one we try to avoid naming, India and Indonesia) and then “3 NEEDY” countries (Cambodia, Myanmar and Pakistan).

Does this structure make sense to anyone?
